

The Kraeger Beast

Deep in the crust of the planet a massive insect was petrified, an immense creature several hundred thousand years old and the only one of its kind that stayed intact after an ancient meteor storm. The powerful magical waves of the Maelstrom brought life back into the petrified creature, and ever since it has been carving tunnels through frozen earth and glaciers in Drakkar.

The monstrosity was named after the first town it completely decimated, the small city of Kraeger. Since then it has been the most fearsome creature to roam the frozen tundras of Drakkar. The reason this creature is highly sought out for destruction is due to the extreme danger it presents to any travelers to Southeastern Novus, particularly challenging if caravans of goods are disrupted.

The dangerous thing about the Kraeger Beast is its ability to pierce armor with its claws and teeth effortlessly, and its still petrified carapace which protects it from basic weapons.
