

Wkawn

Wkawn is the smallest region of Novus, consisting of a peninsula of land on the Western coast. This area has the most vibrant and lively jungle on the planet, the Jungles of Wkawn. It also has a gargantuan carnivorous worm, Jue R'Gon, constantly feeding on its residents.

The oldest city of Novus is still standing near the tip of the peninsula, the city of Assa. It is here that the now legendary wizard, Zondara, first shaped the wild energies created by the Maelstrom into a magical force never before seen in the world.

Since that day the concept of Wizardry was born. Zondara practiced the shaping of magic for years in the city of Assa, gaining support and followers along the way. Eventually this following turned into a true School of Wizardry, operated by the people who showed the most aptitude and excitement for the shaping of energy.

Arc Island is also part of Wkawn, it is a small island between the peninsula and the mainland that emanates residual energy that repels any living creatures from staying on it for any extended length of time. It is unknown where the energy comes from, but perhaps one day a brave and powerful wizard could discover it's source.